Family, friends of John Balamos seek web visitors

By BOB FALLSTROM
H&R Community News Editor

A website honoring the late John Balamos of Decatur and New York City has had more than 17,000 hits. The goal is to reach 20,000 hits by Tuesday, Nov. 19, the 86th anniversary of his birth.

From humble roots, Balamos wrote music from 1960-2009 — complete musicals, theatrical scores, children's theatre, Shakespearean pieces, Greek pieces, jazz. He wrote the soundtrack for "Hercules in New York," a satire film featuring Arnold

During his last 25 years, Balamos was senior music director at the prestigious 92nd Street Y in New York City. He died Feb. 9, 2011, after a full day of work followed by dinner with family and friends, leaving a legacy as an accomplished pianist, music teacher, composer, beloved family member and friend.

The website, www.johnbalamos.com, was established with the hope of building a music foundation for the perpetuity of his work. Under the composer tab on the website are two music videos of early Balamos compositions directed and performed by Millikin University students.

In order to reach 20,000 hits, Georgia Greanias Casciato, a niece, is asking:

Send a note to friends with the link.

Send it out to church groups, arts communities and social groups.

Revisit the site yourself

When you send the link, ask your recipients to also forward to their lists.

John Balamos had a passion for music and life. "I work long hours every day and love it — retirement is dumb," Balamos emphasized in a Herald & Review article. "I can't imagine doing nothing. As a rule, artists don't retire. Art is everything."

THE GIFT OF MUSIC

Notable

CONTRIBUTION

Donations of used musical instruments may change a child's life

DECATUR — The Symphony Orchestra Guild of Decatur, in partnership with the Decatur Public Schools Foundation, is sponsoring a "Give the Gift of Music" drive. Unused musical instruments can be donated for use by students in the Decatur public schools who are unable to rent or buy an instrument.

Instruments in particular need include flutes, clarinets, violins and cellos. However, all instruments will be accepted.

A loan library of 180 instruments has been maintained by the Decatur Public Schools Foundation for the past five years. All of the instruments have been loaned this year. There was a waiting list of students who want to study music and were turned away because of lack of instruments.

Research has shown that music can create a positive influence and academic success in a student's life.

To donate an instrument, contact Don Martin, (217) 428-4336 to arrange for pick-up or drop off instruments at the Decatur Area Arts Council, 125 N. Water St.; Thompson Kramer Music Store, 2102 N. Oakland Ave.; or the Decatur Public Schools Foundation, Keil Building, 101 W. Cerro Gordo St.

Another mission of the Symphony Orchestra Guild is to sponsor live performances in the schools by outstanding professional artists.

On Tuesday, a percussion master class for Mount Zion High School and MacArthur High School students was given by Ronni Wenzell, who has performed in Europe, South America and in China. He also conducted master classes at Millikin University.

Wanted: WWII vet stories

This is for World War II veterans.

Have you talked with Patrick Sullivan? The 20-year-old Millikin University senior wants to contact you and you, all Decatur and Macon County World War II veterans.

He's compiling information about your experiences to be published in a book. Proceeds from the book sales will go to preserving the World War II Memorial.

He's collecting stories by contacting veterans from lists I supplied last year.

He has about 40 stories in hand from the lists and from visiting Imboden Creek and Eagle Ridge retirement homes. He also has sent letters to a number of veterans.

Yes, we have the World War II Memorial in front of the Decatur Civic Center with your name on it. The book would add more documentation of your service, preserving information your children, your grandchildren and their children will want to know in years to come.

So far as I know, there is no comprehensive book of this kind. E.E. "Pete" Nicholls, who proposed the World War II Memorial and worked diligently for it, compiled a 1991 book "Heroes in Our Midst," 330 pages, which listed the names of Macon County veterans from World War I through the Persian Gulf War and included some photos and articles.

When Nicholls and Gordon Brenner began research for the World War II Memorial, they found many more names. Sullivan knows he needs many more stories to finish a book with enormous historical importance.

He considers a talk with Art Jacoby Sr. most interesting. Jacoby, in his mid-90s, talked about his Navy days on the LST (landing ship tank) he served on in the South Pacific and about the battles of Iwo

Expressing gratitude never goes out of style

Dear Abby: With the holidays approaching, a reminder is in order. People: Don't forget those thank-you notes! I don't mean an email, but a REAL, honest-to-gosh thank-you note sent through the mail with postage.

My mother always told me that a gift is not truly yours until a proper thank-you has been sent. She said it "completed the transfer." I was not allowed to play with the item or use it until that note was written.

This is especially true for young people today, who seemingly were not taught this in school or by their parents. Very young children can draw a picture, and the parent can add a line to say it was drawn to express thanks. As the child matures, he/she can use his/her own words of gratitude.

I can't tell you how many parents comment on the absence of this display of etiquette. Good manners are never out of date. They are noticed and appreciated. From time to time I have seen you mention your booklet on "How to Write Letters." If it includes a section on thank-you notes, I'm sure it would be helpful to a lot of people in the next two months.

— Elinor in Surprise, Ariz.

Dear Elinor: The booklet does. Not a day goes by that I don't receive letters and emails from readers who are upset enough to write because they haven't received a thank-you note for a birthday, graduation, wedding or holiday gift they sent. Some of the writers say they are so hurt and offended that they will stop giving gifts because they were left hanging, wondering if their gift was ever received. The problem may be that many parents no longer insist their children practice this courtesy, so the kids never learn how to do it.

Chief among the reasons that thank-you notes aren't sent is that many people don't know what to say. They think the note has to be a long, flowery composition when, in fact, short and to the point is more effective.

Keeping a notepad handy when opening gifts and immediately taking a moment to jot down the first thought that comes to mind is helpful.

(Example: Do you like the color? The style? Is it something you had been looking for and couldn't find? Is it a special homemade treat? Mmmm.) WRITE IT DOWN.

While letter-writing or even emailing may seem like a chore, there are times when a handwritten note is the most appropriate means of communicating one's thoughts. My booklet contains sample letters for almost any occasion. It can be ordered by sending your name and mailing address, plus check or money order for $7, to Dear Abby — Letters Booklet, Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. Shipping and handling are included in the price. Inside you will find many samples that can be used as patterns from which to write your own.

For anyone who has ever wondered where to begin when writing a note of thanks, offering warm congratulations, condolences, composing a love letter or the opposite — announcing a broken engagement or a decision to divorce — "How to Write Letters" is a handy guide for people who put off writing because they don't know what to say.

Dear Abby is written by Jeanne Phillips for Universal Press Syndicate. Write to Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

BALAMOS

New York productions. He received Rockefeller and Jim Kaplan grants that recognized his teaching innovations and creativity. At the time of his death, Balamos was working on "Drum Taps," a dramatic adaptation of the Civil War based on a play by Joseph Scott Kierland.

"John had a way of encouraging people to reach their potential whether in music or in life," praised his brother, Dino Balamos of Decatur. "John had an extraordinary impact on our organization and our multiple generations of students," said Jo Frances Brown, director of the 60+ program at the 92nd Street Y.

Bess Greanias, Balamos's sister, remembered his earliest request for a piano. "It was the post-depression era, and our father told him the family couldn't afford a piano. The next day a piano was mysteriously delivered to our home."

Balamos trained in the classics and had a passion for Johann Sebastian Bach. He studied with Elizabeth Travis at Millikin University and at Indiana University. His early compositions integrated Eastern/Greek Orthodox and Byzantine music. He believed in living life to its fullest every step of the journey.
